CLAYTON COUNTY HONORS LAW ENFORCEMENT LEADERS

Jonesboro - Clayton County Chairman, Eldrin Bell and Divine Faith Ministries International Church Senior Pastor, Pastor Donald E. Battle, honored area law enforcement personnel in a special ceremony on Sunday, December 5, 2010, at Divine Faith Ministries. The sanctuary was packed to capacity for the special Law Enforcement Day program that took place during the church's 11:00am worship service.

The special Law Day service was dedicated to all of Clayton County and city of Atlanta's law enforcement personnel. It included a special presentation to Clayton County Police Chief, Greg Porter; Clayton County Sheriff, Kem A. Kimbrough; and Atlanta's Police Chief, George N. Turner.

Family members, friends, as well as local officials, attended the ceremony that kept north bound traffic down Tara Boulevard tied up during the mid-morning. Vice-Chairman Wole Ralph (District 3); Commissioner Gail Hambrick (District 2); Riverdale Mayor, Dr. Evelyn Winn-Dixon; and Clayton County Solicitor General Tasha Mosley were present as proclamations and presentations were made to the three Law Enforcement Officers.

Both Bell and Battle are former law enforcement officers. Chairman Bell began and ended his successful law enforcement career with the Atlanta Police Department (APD) while Pastor Battle began his career in law enforcement in Savannah, GA, and completed his public safety career with the Atlanta Police Department. Each also possesses first-hand knowledge of the dangers associated with a career in public safety along with what it truly meant to uphold the oath to protect and serve.
